

Anna PODPIATNIKOVA
STATE POLICY OF THE TRANSITIVE SPACE
DEVELOPMENT OF UKRAINE

Transformation processes influencing the activity of the state, including the integration activity of Ukraine and the speed of reforms, whose implementation is consistent with global trends and internal needs of the country. All of the above leads to the need for policy analysis and the establishment of a scientific basis.

The formation of an effective model of governance dedicated V. Bakumenko, V. Bondarenko, V. Lugovoi, B. Kolesnikov, V. Knyazev V. Kutsenko, B. Kravchenko, N. Lypovskoyi, G. Mostovoy, S. Seregina, Yu. Surmina, A. Jakubowsky. The issue of improving public policy always attracted the attention of Ukrainian and foreign scientists, including E. Weiningen D. Veymer O. Kiliyevych V. Rebkalo V. Tertychka.

However, despite the large number of scientific researches, there is a necessity to develop system measures for its development as a whole, as a single type of activity that will provide unification management approaches and accelerate these processes.

The article is the detailed nature of the concept of «public policy of transitive space» and determine its main directions.

Public policy is a comprehensive concept, the formation and implementation of which influence on public policy of development of transitive space.

In the development plan and create socio-economic development of Ukraine has taken into account economic, financial, investment, transport, social policy and regional.

The difficult economic situation makes the importance of economic policy. Good financial providing will support development of any business. The involvement of investment resources, quality of transport providing are also key elements of Ukrainian growth.

The social policy takes into account the health sector, educational institutions. Quality of life, its social security and state of enterprises determines the importance of regional policy.

The public policy of transitive space must be determined by the Parliament of Ukraine and carried out under the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine.

Thus, the state policy of development of transitive space is the actions of the government aimed at resolving the complex problems associated with the development of transitive space Ukraine in order to ensure the effectiveness of its work to improve the functioning and so, in accordance with the goals and directions principles of implementation.

The main directions of state policy of Ukraine transitive space should be:

- creation of favorable external and internal conditions for the progressive growth of Ukraine in all directions;
- the creation of proper conditions for the development of Ukrainian society;
- the implementation of the priority reforms and two programs (programs and promote energy dependence of Ukraine in the world);
- positioning of Ukraine in the international arena as a state that carries out all activities / reforms for approaching European standards.

Therefore, we believe that state policy of Ukraine transitive space are the main activities of the government that is associated with the formation and development of European Ukraine and the definition of the main measures of reforms' realization.

Development of Ukraine is accompanied by reforms and public policy of Ukraine transitive space that is to form lines of action for the development of transitive space Ukraine. The main directions of state policy of transitive space should be the implementation of 10 priority measures defined in the Strategy for Sustainable Development «Ukraine – 2020». Prospects for further research is to study the characteristics of the state policy of Ukraine transitive space.